The Royal took his favorite book, the Bible, to school before the Christmas holidays so he could read it in his free time. When the time came, his teacher told him it was not allowed. His parents, of course, were upset by the incident and believed their son's fundamental rights were being hampered. I feel like it violated not only his religious freedom, but his freedom of speech, Royal's father Justin Grandstaff said. Related: When the school removes the kena from a blind child and replaces it with pool noodles, when asked if the seventh grader at Bewker Middle School was bothering someone while reading a book, Royal replied, I shouldn't have. He told Fox4KC that he did not read out loud or share the Bible with other students. The school's principal, Lance Tobin, told the station that the Bible was not actually banned and that the situation needed to be looked into further. So far, there is still no word on how the problem was solved. As for the Royal, this is just a small obstacle. I like to read my Bible because I'm a good book, he said, adding that it encourages him and that he never stops reading it. Presley joined the family a little more than three years ago and rarely left his son's side. The dog was a real blessing. The dog was great for Cech in every way. Presley, who joined the Wear family more than three years ago, rarely left Sefware's side. Courtesy of the Wear family staff and students at Good Hope Middle School know Presley by name, said Sonia Hogg, a yearbook adviser who arranged for the dog to be included in the seventh-grade photo. She is part of our student body. She goes wherever Cech goes. She knows exactly what to do in each teacher's class. She knows where to go.She is quiet, she is still. She never bothers or confuses anyone, Hogg said. Related: Wrangler, everything you need to know about today's puppies with a purpose, she's part of our school. And if we're going to put all our bodies in the yearbook, Presley needs to be in the yearbook. Good Hope Middle School Hogg said the photographer needed a little redody before he could get Presley enough still for the photo. When we walked up to her trying to straighten her out or head in the right direction, she was sitting and hitting a turn over on her back because she wanted us to put her tummy in, Hogg said. The dog was great for Cech in every way. Joseph Ware Jr. said. pick it up. Reed was the trick. When we told her to sit down with the lead in her mouth, she did it. We got a picture of her, Hogg said. We probably let her out for 5 or 10 minutes, which would give us more time to film the students, but it was worth it, follow Twitter TODAY.com writer Eun Kyung Kim.
